Catalog Description

An introduction to the rudiments of Hebrew and Greek to enable the student to do basic word studies, grammatical, and syntactical analysis of a text in the original languages. The course will teach the use of lexicons, original language commentaries, and computer based Biblical language aids.

Course Narrative & Rationale

One of the “gaps” that must be overcome in understanding the Bible is that of language. The Old Testament was written in Hebrew and Aramaic (over 99% Hebrew) and the New Testament was written in “Koine” Greek. Unlike Islam, Judaism and Christianity have translated their Sacred Scriptures and printed translations within a few decades of moving into the culture of a new language. The study of Hebrew and Greek is not necessary to read the Word of God as Judaism and Christianity understand the Word of God.

However, every translation is an interpretation and every Christian leader is responsible that the interpretation(s) of the translation(s) used in the community do not lead people astray. This requires at least a rudimentary knowledge of the original languages of the Bible. It is no accident that the greatest decline in the integrity and focus of the Church corresponded with the loss of knowledge of original languages and the greatest renewal of the Church (the Reformation movement) corresponded with the recovery of the biblical languages.

Traditional teaching of Hebrew and Greek in seminaries and universities has usually required massive memorization of vocabularies and conjugations of verbs and declensions of nouns. The massive amount of information that was necessary to work in the original languages meant that most students of Hebrew and/or Greek (even the best students) were not able to give the necessary time to translating their texts after they left school and entered ministry. In the late 20th century the rise of personal computers made access to this massive amount of information available by the click of a mouse.

The teaching of biblical languages has generally failed to adapt to the new resources available via computer and the internet. This course is an attempt on the part of NTS to adjust to the new resources. This course is not designed to teach one to translate vast amounts of Greek or Hebrew text. A half semester in either language does not make one qualified to translate. Its purpose is to teach some basic elements of grammar and syntax that will enable a student to gain insight into a verse or small paragraph of material in the original language. That insight will supplement traditional translations and enable the student to recognize interpretive choices made by the translations. This will enrich both the personal understanding of the student and the ability to share meaning from Scripture with one's community of faith/ministry.

Introduction to Biblical Languages approaches its topic with a practice focused organizing principle. This course is designed to teach the student how to, with the help of Logos Bible Software, recognize the interpretative decisions made by translators of scripture. Furthermore, the course is designed to teach students how to make appropriate interpretative decisions when it comes to rudimentary translating of Biblical texts. Lastly, Introduction to Biblical Languages is designed to equip the students to study words in the Hebrew and Greek Bible in such a way that will enhance their preaching and/or teaching ministry.

Course Outcomes

Upon completion of this course students will be able to:

1. Demonstrate an ability to write word studies for Hebrew and Greek words which prove to be exegetically sound and homiletically beneficial. This presumes the ability to use lexicons.
2. Demonstrate recall of the following terms in English grammar: subject, direct object, indirect object, verb, tense, noun, singular, plural, definite article, preposition, and conjunction.
3. Explain the different interpretative options for the following Greek grammatical categories: nominative, accusative, dative, genitive, present, imperfect, aorist, future, perfect, active, middle, passive, imperative, subjunctive, participle, attributive, substantive, and predicate. One way this will be demonstrated is by writing word studies which address these categories.
4. Explain the different interpretative options for the following Hebrew grammatical categories: verbal stems (qal, niph'al, piel, pual, hithpa'el, hiph'il, hoph'al), noun state (absolute or construct), dual number, direct object marker, prepositions (inseparable and separable), pronominal suffixes, vav (conjunctive, disjunctive, and consecutive), volitionals (jussive, imperative, and cohortative), infinitives, and participles. One way this will be demonstrated is by writing word studies which address these categories.

5. Demonstrate an ability to ask appropriate questions pertaining to what decisions have been made in English translations of the Bible. The asking of such questions will give the students guidance for the sort of questions which should be dealt with in commentaries.
6. Demonstrate an ability to discern which manuscript tradition is likely to be original when textual variants are present.

Church of the Nazarene COSAC Competencies

Course Assignments & Requirements

1. Homework - Homework assignments will respond to lecture and reading material. You will be asked to work on an assignment and then be prepared to explain your work in the Homework Discussion Forum. Homework assignments will typically consist of preparing a rudimentary translation and a mini-word study. The translation portion of the assignment will demonstrate competence in interpreting the grammatical categories discussed in the class lectures. The word study portion of the assignment will demonstrate your ability to bridge the gap between the class lectures and the church setting. The word studies will consist of looking at a word from an assigned pericope and describing why its parsing is significant for translation, how the word is used in other pericopes, and how one might make appropriate homiletic statements regarding the assigned pericope in light of the word studied. Your homework assignments will be due to be posted in the weekly Homework Discussion Forum on the date given in the course calendar. [Outcomes 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, & 6]
2. Online Interaction- Online discussion is integral to the learning method employed in an online course. Therefore, students will be expected to post and respond regularly throughout each week of the semester. This discussion amounts to the class time component which would be experienced in a “traditional” seminary class. Failure to interact online amounts to being absent from class and will affect the student’s grade. See the link under Course Resources in Moodle for a rubric on what makes a quality post in an online classroom. Online Interaction will be graded weekly based on your involvement in the following activities:
 - a. Lecture/Reading Response Forum: Students will post two questions relating to the lecture’s content or the weekly reading. These posts are to be submitted in the weekly Lecture/Reading Response Forum in Moodle by Tuesday each week. Questions should be critical in nature and should show evidence that the student has spent time contemplating the material in the lecture. Questions should seek to clarify aspects of the lecture or reading which students found ambiguous or confusing. After posting, students shall respond to at least two questions of their classmates. These responses must be posted no later than Saturday. These responses should communicate more than, “I wondered that too.” The point of the response is to provide a way of looking at the topic which the person asking the question may not have considered. Participation in the lecture forum will account for 50% of your weekly Online Interaction grade. [Outcome 5]
 - b. Homework Discussion Forum: The method for submitting your weekly homework assignments will be by attaching your document to a post in the weekly Homework Discussion Forum. The purpose of this assignment is to allow you to work together on homework assignments as though you were around a table. After posting your assignment, you will be expected to read the assignments of others. If needed, the class will be divided into small groups so as to avoid massive amounts of reading. Once you have read the assignments of others, you will be expected to post three responses to the assignments of others in the Homework Discussion Forum no later than Friday. These responses should be to different students and should either ask a critical question (e.g. “why did you interpret the text this way rather than that way?”) or provide clarification on something your classmate had problems understanding. Your grade in this forum will be based on the quality of your posts, not on the quality of your actual weekly homework assignment (that grade will be recorded separately). Participation in the Homework Discussion Forum will account for 25% of your weekly Online Interaction Grade. [Outcomes 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, & 6]

- c. Class Glossary: After each lecture a list of terms will be presented to the class. Depending on the size and content of the lecture, the professor will assign students to choose 2-4 terms on which they do further study. After researching each term, students will post a brief definition to the class glossary. In addition to the 1-2 sentence definition, the post should include an example of the term in the Bible. Posts will be graded for being correct, concise, and for providing an appropriate usage in the Bible. An example of a good glossary post will be provided. Due dates for glossary posts will appear in the course calendar. Resources for this assignment are available in Logos. You will also be allowed to use reputable websites. Submission of your glossary post will account for 25% of your weekly Online Interaction Grade. [Outcomes 2 & 5]
3. Assessments - There will be two kinds of assessment of your mastery of course materials independent of the Homework Assignments. Unlike Homework assignments, Assessments will not be accepted if turned in late.
 - a. Quizzes - There will usually be at least one quiz in each unit which will test your mastery of the materials covered in that unit. [Outcomes 2, 3, 4, 5, 6]
 - b. Worksheets - There will also be occasional worksheets assigned in addition to the Homework. Worksheets shall be submitted on the date indicated in the course calendar. [Outcomes 1, 2, 3, 4, & 5]

Method for Submitting Assignments

The homework assignments and worksheets will require work on your own using the Logos 4 Original Language Library. You will need to download the homework assignments from the weekly topic areas in Moodle. You will need to be sure that you have installed the proper fonts to be able to read and print the assignments. Until you develop adequate skill to type in Greek or Hebrew, you may select, copy, and paste words from the homework assignments and worksheets to include with your answers. After you have completed your assignment upload it via the appropriate links in Moodle. The professor will not accept assignments via e-mail, fax, or snail-mail.

Form and Style Expectations

All the work submitted in this course will be in the form of worksheets and homework assignments which will not require research beyond the Logos 4 software system. The only information you will need to provide me with is which resource(s) you used within Logos for the word study portion of your assignments.

Inclusive Language

NTS is committed to the equality of women and men. Recognizing that people have often used the English language in ways that imply the exclusion or inferiority of women, NTS urges students, faculty, and staff to avoid sexist language in public discourse, in classroom discussions, and in their writings. All written work presented to meet course requirements must use gender inclusive language.

Policy Regarding Late Work & Missed Exams

Because of the nature of work with Biblical Languages the material (homework, worksheets, quizzes, etc...) in this course will tend to be cumulative and you will not be able to lag behind the course schedule and successfully complete the course. Homework assignments for each unit will be accepted with a 10% penalty until the unit is completed. Material from the previous unit may be submitted with a 50% reduction in credit. No material will be accepted once the unit following it has been completed. Worksheets, Quizzes, and Online posts/responses will not be accepted late unless the professor is given notice of an acceptable excuse before the due date stated in the course calendar.

One final note on due dates, while material is penalized for late submission, early submissions are welcomed. Some weeks of this course will cover a lot of information and will have many assignments due. Most weeks have assignments due on Sunday. This does not mean that you are required to post on the Sabbath (or whatever day you may take as your Sabbath). Rather, the due dates reflect the last possible date you can submit something without receiving a penalty. It is my hope that everyone in this class will be able to find a day to take as Sabbath. In studying languages I have found that it is necessary to take breaks from studying in order to recharge one's mind.

Course Grading

All graded assignments will due at 11:55 PM on the date given in the course calendar below. All assignments will be worth 100 points. The final grade for this course will be calculated as follows:

Online Interaction/Class Participation	25%
13 Homework Assignments	30%
5 Worksheets	20%
6 Quizzes	20%
Quiz 8 (Final Exam)	5%

Each assignment will be graded on a scale from 0 to 100. Letter grades will not be assigned until the final numerical average is calculated. At that time the curve will grant grades of A for averages in the 90's, grades of B for averages in the 80's, grades of C for averages in the 70's, grades of D for averages in the 60's, and grades of F for averages less than 60.

In accordance with the provisions of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, NTS is committed to providing students with disabilities the opportunity to participate and benefit from its programs and activities, Accordingly NTS will make reasonable modifications to its programs and activities to accommodate otherwise qualified students with disabilities, unless such modifications would impose an undue burden on the operation of the particular program or activity or would fundamentally alter the nature or purpose of the program or activity. Students needing accommodations should contact the Office of the Registrar. They also should contact the instructor no later than the end of the first class session to discuss learning needs and adaptive strategies which have been beneficial for the student in the past.
