

I. Catalog Description

A study of the historical period, the character, and the message of Ezekiel, with special attention to the nature and concerns of the prophetic movement in ancient Israel and Judah.

II. Course Rationale

The faculty of NTS views the Bible as foundational, informing all the life of the church. We believe this view accords with historic Christianity, as well as with the direction of God found in the Bible itself.

Ezekiel prophesied at a critical time in the life of God's ancient people, when the southern kingdom of Judah lost its national existence. Ezekiel advised those already exiled (as Jeremiah did those still remaining in Judah and Jerusalem) that God's decision to punish Judah for her lusting after other gods and for her institutionalized, systemic injustice was irrevocable. But that was not the end of the story; God would restore Judah in an unprecedented work of deliverance that ultimately would reflect the glory of God throughout the world.

Ezekiel is a book of profound depth, insight, and emotional intensity. Its imagery has been deemed difficult. But Ezekiel richly rewards those willing to expend time and effort to understand its patterns and its message. Ezekiel is a mine of hidden treasure; wealthy, indeed, is the one who explores its depths.

III. Course Objectives

Upon completion of this course, you will be able to:

- A. Express, orally and/or in writing, the structure of the book of Ezekiel;
- B. Identify the major characters, places, events, oracles, and themes of the book of Ezekiel;
- C. Formulate an appropriate understanding of Ezekiel's theology;
- D. Bring the book of Ezekiel into your own ministry theology and praxis.

IV. Required Texts

- A. Block, Daniel I. The Book of Ezekiel (two volumes). Grand Rapids: Wm. B. Eerdmans Publ. Co, 1997, 1998.
- B. Frank, Harry Thomas. Hammond Atlas of the Bible Lands. Maplewood, NJ: Hammond, Inc., 1990.
(This is a good, inexpensive Bible atlas; if you already own a good atlas, you are not required to buy this one.)

V. Student Evaluation

Your course grade will be determined by the following:

- A. Class attendance will affect your grade. Excessive absence and/or tardiness will lower your course grade.
- B. Reading of the course texts before the first class session will be necessary to earn an "A" for the course.
- C. A number of short exegetical projects and readings will be assigned during the two weeks of class sessions. On issues of mechanics, the Seminary has elected to follow Turabian's guide.
- D. A short-answer, "objective" exam will be given immediately after the two weeks of class sessions. This exam will be administered via the Blackboard system.
- E. An end-of-semester exegetical project on a single passage from Ezekiel will be assigned. Expectations for this project will be discussed during the two weeks of class sessions in January.
